FACTS ADMITTED BY ED CALLAHAN

Denies Conspiracy and Tries to Explain Conduct.

Judge Hargis Recalled By Defense and His Memory Proves Most Convenient.

MAY GO TO JURY TUESDAY.

Beattyville, Ky., July 14.—B. F. French, alleged co-conspirator with Hargis and Callahan in the Marcum murder, took the stand and denied everything of a damaging nature that had been testified against him.

Bob Profit, of Winchester, alleged to have been a former clansman in the French-Eversole feud, testified that Feltner solicited a reward from French not to testify in the Winchester trial. Profit even quoted Feltner as saying to French: "I don't know anything about you, but I can testify to it, anyhow." Profit did not tell why he left Perry county.

Judge Hargis Recalled.
Judge Hargis was recalled by Mr. Young, and denied that after the killing White came to his store and asked Callahan: "What about that money?" On cross-examination, he was taken over the $1,500 Felix Feltner note again.

Yesterday Hargis proved a better witness for himself than he had made for White and Jett in their trials. At crucial times his memory was conveniently bad but as a whole he gave a plausible story, denying most vigorously and emphatically statements of Feltner, Mann and others who testified against him. He gave different constructions to Ewen's statements than had been given by Ewen himself. He, of course, denied taking part in any conspiracy or of desiring the death of Marcum. It is believed the case will go to the jury Tuesday evening.

Callahan's Testimony.
Former Sheriff Ed Callahan, jointly indicted with Hargis for the Marcum murder, was the next witness.

Callahan said he did not see and did not know who fired the shots. He was looking directly at Marcum when the shots were fired. He denied the various conversations and statements imputed to him and implicating him in the conspiracy. He denied ever having intimidated to anybody that he wanted Jim Marcum killed. He denied that he ever discussed with anybody a plan to have anybody killed. He denied that he ever said that he would like to see Marcum's head shot out.

Callahan said Curt Jett had been working for him as deputy sheriff. He denied having given Jett a pistol. He said he was not on speaking terms with Jett at the time Marcum was killed.

On cross-examination, Callahan said that Jett quit working for him in July, 1902, and he sent Jett ten dollars the Saturday before Marcum was killed, claiming it to be balance due Jett. He said that he had sent the money by Jesse Spicer. Callahan admitted that he knew Tom White, in Perry county, but did not remember what crime White was then convicted of, that he was one of White's bondsmen or that he helped secure a pardon for White. He believed that he is on the bonds of John Smith and John Abner for the Marcum murder.

Callahan said his feelings toward Marcum were not good, but that he was not "angry" at Marcum. He denied that Marcum had prosecuted him for the murder of Jim Deaton, and said the charges made by Marcum for which he was indicted for libel did not change his attitude toward Marcum. He says he did not recognize the assassin because of the revolver smoke, but he saw the outline of some man. He says he drew his revolver and started across the street, but was detained by Judge Hargis.

Callahan said he felt it was not safe to go out on the street when Marcum was killed, but thought it was safe to send his deputies to search the court-house.

Was On Hargis' Notes.
Callahan admitted going to Leslie county with Hargis to see Mose Feltner after the Winchester trial, and also admitted going on Hargis' notes for $1,500, but did not know the money was to be turned over by Judge Hargis to Felix Feltner. He admitted going to Richmond before the Winchester trial to see "Feltner and his horde of witnesses," and find out what they would testify, but denied that he tried to prevent them from testifying. Witness went to Cincinnati during the trial, but denied that he went to see, or did see, Feltner and the other witnesses, who had gone there. He admitted drawing $500 from the Winchester bank just before he started, but drew it from the account of "A. H. & J. Hargis," but insisted that when he drew the money he intended to go to Jackson to pay the expenses of some witnesses.

By the consent of the people of Paducah, The Sun has the largest circulation in the city and county. The average for June was 4072 a day.

"I didn't know the way to the L. and E. depot," said Callahan, "so I made a mistake and went to the L. and N. depot and got on the train and paid my fare to Cincinnati on private business." Callahan admitted that he had failed to execute warrants on John Smith and John Abner when he had an opportunity to do so. Alex. H. Hargis was the next witness.

GOOD OFFICES

TENDERED BY UNCLE SAM IN SOUTH AMERICAN DISPUTE.

Suggestion Made That This Country and Mexico Co-operate in the Settlement.

Oyster Bay, July 14.—President Roosevelt has tendered his good offices to President Diaz, of Mexico, to settle the squabble between Salvador and Guatemala. It is possible Sagamore Hill again will figure as the international altar of peace. Acting under orders from the president a state deputy wired Diaz that the United States stood ready to co-operate with him in settling differences of his Central American neighbors.

Big Hotel at Manila.
Washington, July 14.—Manila will have a million dollar hotel, the finest between San Francisco and Cairo. The site is purchased and the building will be begun in a short time. Horace Dunbar, who conducted successful hoteleries in Cincinnati, Boston and Seattle, is in charge of the enterprise, which is financed by American and English capitalists.

Deposits of $4,500,000.
Washington, July 14.—Secretary of the Treasury Shaw has deposited between four and four and one-half millions of government money in about twenty-five national banks in various parts of the country. He notified the banks receiving these deposits they will be required to give United States government bonds as security by next Wednesday. It is thought this will have the immediate effect of improving the market price of outstanding two per cent consols.

INTO SALOON

YOUNG FELLOWS ATTEMPT TO RIDE THEIR HORSES.

Are Intoxicated and One Asserts He Will Make His Nag Leap Over the Bar.

Inspired by the brilliant hued pictures of equestrian feats on the bill boards and impelled by a combination of fuel oil and 40-proof prune juice, two young men from the country undertook to ride their horses into C. W. Rodfus' saloon, Third street and Kentucky avenue, during the parade this morning. The young fellows lashed their beasts and one of them vowed he would "take the bar" with his nag. Clerks and customers armed with brooms and umbrellas put an end to the performance, and the youths rode away to seek excitement and adventure in other parts of the city.

Laundrymen Indicted.
Cincinnati, O., July 14.—Thirty-nine laundry companies and laundry proprietors were indicted by the grand jury today on the charge of maintaining a combination in restraint of trade. Eighteen of these were also indicted as an organization in restraint of trade.

THINKS OF WHEEL WHEN HE REVIVES

A Negro Boy Does Aerial Stunt on Broadway.

Strikes Hole, Turns Double Somersault and Alights On His Head On Curb.

BOY AND BICYCLE RECOVER.

Charles James, an eighteen-year-old negro performed a triple somersault with an original windup of spinning on his head, at Broadway and Sixth street yesterday afternoon. To the casual observer it might have appeared to be a forerunner of the circus but it was even more than this, and the negro will probably have occasion to remember the incident.

James was riding on a bicycle and at Broadway and Ninth street got on the smooth bitulithic street. His sporting blood was aroused when he caught up with a fast going Broadway car and a race was immediately started. At Sixth street and Broadway the rider did not notice a deep hole and his wheel shot into it before he was aware of his danger.

The wheel dropped into the hole but James went in the opposite direction—straight up. He turned a triple somersault and finished the stunt with a spin on his head. His forehead struck the curbstone and when he was picked up a few seconds later by Chief of Police Collins, he was thinking only of the borrowed wheel.

"If the wheel am not damaged I guess I'm all right," he stated when he collected his scattered wits. An examination of the wheel showed it to have escaped, and the vanquished rider rubbing a big swelling on his forehead and gash in his head, continued his journey.

NEW ARMY POSTS

To Be Discussed With President By Taft.

Washington, D. C., July 14.—Secretary Taft will meet the president Monday at Oyster Bay to further discuss the proposed establishment of brigade posts in various parts of the country, involving the abandonment of many smaller army posts. The plea had been made that some posts adjacent to large cities should be maintained in order that troops may be available to suppress riots. Taft, however, does not favor this idea, holding that it is the duty of the states to maintain their militia forces in such condition they can suppress internal disorders of that kind without recourse to the regular army which is made unpopular by the service suggested.

TIGHT COLLAR

Chokes Boston Man to Death in His Hotel.

Boston, July 14.—Choked to death by the tight collar that he was wearing, Frank J. Blagdon, a prominent citizen of Medford, was found on his hands and knees on the floor of his room in Clark's hotel last night, by the manager of the hotel. A porter forced the door, and Blagdon was found kneeling on the floor as does a small child in creeping. There was no marks or bruises or any sign to indicate the manner of his death other than the collar, which was so tight around his neck that the flesh at the throat hung over the edges of the collar. He was quite stout, and as he had a weak heart it is probable that was quickly affected.

FRISCO'S MAYOR IS UNDER CHARGE

Letter Received From Commissioner of Police.

Says Schmitz Wished to Sell Whisky After the Earthquake Caused Dry Spell.

JAPANESE WORK ON RAILROAD.

San Francisco, July 14.—Police Commissioner Thomas Reagan last night handed to Mayor Schmitz a letter in which he positively refused to resign from the board. He makes the most sensational charges against the mayor and sheds interesting light on the inner workings of the administration. In this letter, which was entirely in his own hand, Reagan says:

Your honor will, no doubt, recollect that on one occasion you requested me to solicit—not insurance—but whisky. You may also remember the morning when, behind locked doors in your private office, you pleaded, so eloquently for me to join you in the sale of whisky, and the profits, $50 a barrel, to be equally divided between us.

I at that time tried to impress upon your honor that such a thing would be dishonest and disgraceful, and further that a certain firm had no standing, and any dealing with it would be improper and resented by every other wholesale dealer.

Time, the Western National bank and several delinquent saloonkeepers have proved my assertion true. My reason for referring to this matter is to show your honor that I am opposed to soliciting insurance or whisky. After my refusal to sell 100 barrels of whisky per week at a profit to me of $25 each I knew your honor was displeased with me and I endeavored to pay strict attention to my duties.

Reagan makes the direct charge that the mayor hired and brought from the east a detective to assist him in unfairly accomplishing the downfall of former Police Commissioner Hutton. He also says:

In this very short note to your honor touching upon matters past and gone, let me inquire, in passing, about the present. I would like to know the number of houses of ill-fame now in the city in your possession?

Japs Learn Railroad.

San Francisco, July 14.—Ten Japanese army officers are, it is said, to be given railroad positions on the Southern Pacific and allied roads. Three of the lieutenants are to be stationed at the San Francisco headquarters of the Southern Pacific, one at Portland, Ore., two at Salt Lake, one at Los Angeles, one at New Orleans and two at Omaha. The object of sending these army officers to this country is to have Japan, through their experience here, improve its railroad service in traffic and operation, and also its railroad accounting methods.

FORGET BOYCOTT

CHINESE TURN FROM RICE TO FOREIGN EDIBLES.

Two Riots Broke Out On Account of Failure of Crop and the High Price.

Washington, July 14.—Food riots have broken out among the natives of China on account of the partial failure of the rice crop and the high prices at which this staple article of food is being held. Chinese, as a result are turning to foreign foods, forgetful of the boycott, and purchasing American flour.

BANK CLEARINGS ARE INCREASING

Show Excess of $168,861 Over Same Week 1905.

Bumper Crops Promised and General Prosperous Conditions Bid Fair to Continue.

WEEKLY REPORT OF TRADE.

Clearings $832,976
Last year 664,115
Increase 168,861.

Counter business at the banks has been active this week, the clearings showing an increase of over 25 per cent.

General business conditions are satisfactory, and trade in all lines is active for the season. Advance indications for the new season just ahead, too, are satisfactory, and collections are fair.

Local manufacturers report good bookings for future deliveries, and present demands keep the plants busy with forces up to the limit.

General trade reports from all over the country are reassuring. The wheat crop is about made and will be near to a bumper crop with prices good, which means money for the farmer. The other crops are in good condition at the present date, and all signs promise another exceptionally good year for all farm-products, which is an assurance of the continued good conditions in all lines of business; for good crops, with attending good prices, spell prosperity all around.

Local retailers report satisfactory business.

The real estate market is active and prices obtained good. Rents are going down just a trifle which is good news for the renters, but not to the investors. The number of vacant houses, something which the city had never known before in years, has decreased perceptibly but still there are enough good, desirable ones vacant to effect rents.

All lines of building trades, with the probable exception of the carpenters are fully employed. The street contractors and employers in general are still having difficulty in finding enough day laborers.

EXCITES UNEASINESS.

Activity Among Students in Persia Is Likely to Cause Trouble.

Teheran, Persia, July 14.—There is a recrudescence of political unrest among the Mullahs and divinity students, which was noticed earlier in the year and it is exciting great uneasiness in governmental circles. The divinity students broke out into active opposition to the authorities yesterday and forcibly released a professor, who had been imprisoned on the charge of using seditious language. In an affray a student was killed and two were wounded. The heads of clergy immediately assembled in the great mosque and issued insistent demands for the immediate granting of the reforms previously promised in January.

Hummel is suspended until the court of appeals shall have passed upon his conviction of alleged conspiracy in conniving with the aid of the perjured testimony of C. F. Dodge to break up the marriage of Charles W. Morse. He was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary and a fine of $500, and was locked up, but was released on $10,000 bail pending appeal.

Showers tonight and possibly Sunday is the forecast. Moderate temperature. The highest temperature reached yesterday was 82 and the lowest today was 68.

Report That Plans Await Return of His Mother.

New York, July 14.—Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs for the murder of Stanford White, is reported to be without funds and it is stated that the elaborate plans which have been made for his defense cannot be put into execution until the prisoner's mother arrives from Europe and approves the necessary expenditures. What money the young man has had since he has been in jail has been supplied personally by his counsel, pending the arrival of Mrs. William Thaw.

SEEKS HER CHILD

MOTHER COMES TO THE HOME OF THE FRIENDLESS.

Mrs. J. H. Ross, of Jackson, Tenn., Will Invoke the Law if Petition Fails.

Mrs. J. H. Ross, of Jackson, Tenn., is in Paducah fighting for the possession of her twelve-year-old daughter, Ruby May West, who is in the home of the Friendless. Mrs. Ross has employed counsel, and if the child is not turned over to her at once has instructed her attorneys to institute habeas corpus proceedings.

Mrs. Ross resided in Paducah three years ago, and was in reduced circumstances and not able to care for the child. It was placed in the home of the Friendless and has been there since. The mother went to Jackson, Tenn., and married the second time, taking the name of Ross. She is now fully capable of caring for her daughter and asked for her. The authorities at the institution refuse to surrender the daughter and Mrs. Ross went to Attorneys Price & Ross to institute legal proceedings.

Theaters May Exclude Critics.

New York, July 14.—Playhouses are private places, according to a decision of the appellate division of the supreme court today, and the manager or proprietor has a right to say who shall and who shall not enter. The decision dismisses the complaint of James S. Metcalf, the dramatic critic, against Charles Burnham, a member of the Theater Managers' association, for excluding Metcalf from Burnham's theater. Metcalf charged that Burnham and other theatrical managers had entered into a conspiracy to prevent him from exercising his lawful calling.

AGENT EMBARKS ON NEXT TUESDAY

Bears Credentials From State Immigration Bureau.

Paducah Commercial Club Secures His Services to Aid Local Movement.—Up to People.

SECRETARY COONS SUGGESTS.

The Commercial club received in today's mail advice from Mr. Andreas H. Veltschberger, now in New York who has made special arrangements with the immigration department of the Commercial club to advertise Paducah abroad and endeavor to secure desirable immigrants for this section, advising that he would sail from New York on Tuesday next, for Germany, where he expects to be for some time in the interest of the immigration department of the Commercial club.

Hon. Herbert Vreeland state commissioner of agriculture and the state board will today mail Mr. Veltschberger authority to do some special work in the way of securing immigrants in the interest of the Paducah Commercial club and Southwest Kentucky.

The southern states immigration commission, located at 156 Fifth avenue, New York, of which Secretary Coons, of the Commercial club is vice president, and a member of the executive board, is also co-operating with the immigration department of the Commercial club, and it appears from the information at hand, that the question as to whether or not Paducah and southwest Kentucky secure a large number of desirable German settlers is up to the people. If the Commercial club does not get the encouragement and support of those who would be greatly benefited by this work, of course it can accomplish nothing.

Concerning the work, Secretary Coons said:

"There are hundreds of men right here in Paducah who would be greatly benefited by effective work of this kind. Would it not be wise for them to go to the Commercial club headquarters and investigate this matter and show a little interest in it, and encourage the people who are making every effort to build up Paducah and this section of the state? Would it not be wise and a reasonable thing for the business men and property owners of Paducah, who are being benefited every day by the Commercial club work to leave their work for a few minutes occasionally and drop into the Commercial headquarters and show some appreciation for the work being done and give some encouragement to the work?"

Farrel, the "guy with the spinach," turned the trick yesterday afternoon at Wallace park and shut out the Indians. It is true that the Indians were not in form because Cooper, the hard-hitting left fielder, was out of the game on account of illness, and Groh, with a dislocated shoulder held down short, but still the game was won fairly and squarely and the Hoosiers are entitled to it.

Wright for once did not seem "right," or else his team-mates were not "right." There was a conspicuous absence of binging, and this accounts for the showing made by the Indians. They could not hit the man with the spinach and this is the story summed up. Farrel did not intend to make as bad an impression as did his mustache, and he pitched big league ball.

The visitors scored in the first and sixth innings. In the first inning Mitchell smashed out a double and scored on Wilkinson's single. After this the side was retired. In the sixth inning two scored as follows: Farrel singled and Mitchell sacrificed. McClain and Wilkinson singled in succession and two runs scored.

The Indians had one chance to score and this was in the first inning when Taylor tripped. His team mates were unable to do anything with Farrel's delivery and were retired in order.

Day Was Hoodoo to Princeton.
Princeton, Ky., July 14.—The thirteenth of the month and on Friday also proved too much of a hoodoo for the "Invincible Grays" of this city, they losing their first game of the season to the fast "Cairo's Own" from Cairo. After winning Thursday's game the locals went into the game full of confidence only to succumb to all around better playing. The score of the two games follows:
First game:

Cairo 5 7 3

Second game (Friday):

Cairo 7 11 2

This, from the Mattoon Morning Star, is "figuring some":
"Double-headers were played in all cities of the Kitty league circuit Thursday and resulted in an even break all around. Remarkable as it may seem while the standing of the clubs in games won and lost was not materially changed, yet in percentage there were some changes. According to the figures, although Vincennes won and lost yet she loses three points, Jacksonville drops one point, Cairo gains five points, Paducah quits even, Danville loses two and Mattoon gains three. The percentage of the Orphans is now .382, within three points of the highest percentage they have yet attained.

"Mitchell, shortstop of Vincennes, has made the greatest number of errors of any player in the Kitty league, having a total of 48 in 56 games. Doyle, Mattoon's shortstop, is next in line with 37 errors in 55 games. Perrin, Paducah's shortstop, had 30 in 53 games. Ditheridge, Cairo's shortstop, had 24 in 56 games. Roland, Cairo's second baseman, had 23 in 58 games.

"Donovan, of Vincennes, has the most stolen bases to his credit of any player in the league. "Dummy" Hughes, of Jacksonville, comes next on the list.

"Windy" Lutshaw, of Jacksonville, has made six home runs so far this season. Doyle, of Mattoon, is next with five to his credit."

Noble, a member of the vestry during life. Resolutions were adopted, subject to drafting by the appointed committee, while short speeches were made, paying respective mention to the well-known deceased. As this church has been closed for the warm months the successor to Mr. Noble on the board will not be named until some time the coming fall.

The Reason Why.
Two Irishmen driving through the country noticed that many of the barns had weather-vans in the shape of huge roosters.
"Pat," said one to the other, "can you tell me why they always have a rooster and never a hen on the top of them barns?"
"Sure," replied Pat, "an' it must be because the difficulty they'd have in collecting the eggs."—Chicago News.

For Superintendent of Public Instruction—Henry C. Miller, of Hardin county.
For Secretary of State—Hubert Vreeland, of Louisville, or Morgan Chinn, of Mercer county.

When the candidate for attorney general has been finally agreed upon the Democratic machine ticket for state offices will then be complete. Either James Garnett, of Adair county, or Judge James L. Morris, of Oldham county, will be selected to fill the vacancy on the ticket, and it will be known in the next few days which is the choice of the machine.

In the contest for auditor there are two candidates, who have always been staunch supporters of Gov. Beckham and the administration. One of them, Judge Henry B. Hines, of Bowling Green, has always been considered one of the powers behind the throne, and has done more to maintain the machine in power than any man in the state, excepting only Gov. Beckham and Percy Haly. Harry McChesney, of Livingston county, Judge Hines' opponent, was first elected superintendent of public instruction, and three years ago was elected secretary of state, the office he now holds.

During McChesney's occupancy of these two offices Judge Hines has been content to hold the office of state examiner and inspector. Previous to this he was police judge of Bowling Green. Now he has lost favor with Percy Haly, and, as a result, has opposition in the organization he helped build.

Haly is responsible for McChesney's candidacy. This is the first break in the machine. The governor will remain true to Judge Hines.

The fact that the machine is divided against itself is pleasing to Henry Bosworth. He is now making an active canvass for the nomination, and as he is in high favor with the partisans of the late William Goebel, due to the fact that he arrested Caleb Powers, he will prove a factor in the race.

Vreeland vs. Chinn.
Word has gone out from headquarters to all the machine men to keep hands off in the race for secretary of state, Hubert Vreeland, of Louisville, and J. Morgan Chinn, of Mercer county, being the opposing candidates.

Having enjoyed the favor of Gov. Beckham for so many years, Mr. Chinn expected the support of the administration for secretary of state. If he can defeat Hubert Vreeland he is at liberty to do so, but he must not expect the organization to take a hand in the contest, as Mr. Vreeland and his brothers have never antagonized the administration.

THE EASIER WAY.

(From the Chicago Record-Herald.)
'Tis the thorn that gives sweetness,
You say, to the rose.
Yet a rose that was thornless
Might still, I suppose,
Be as fragrant as any
Thorned beauty that blows.

Our joys, without sorrows,
The preachers repeat,
Would bring us no gladness.
Could never be sweet—
Still the cherry that's wormless
Is pleasant to eat.

Our triumphs are empty,
The sages declare
If the ways which we travel
Must always be fair—
But make my way easy
And I will not care.

The summer exodus to pleasure resorts and watering places is on in earnest this week. Society has not been even usually lively for this time of the year. The heart of the summer is reached and while it will be some six weeks or more before the regular season at the Kentucky opens, which is the first fall awakening, the recuperative society devotee soon will be stirring, and planning for the winter.

Don't Starve Your Hair to Death

Hair Must Have Proper Nourishment or Die, Scientists Declare.

Many a head of hair, apparently healthy is slowly starving to death and its owner doesn't know it.

Did you ever know this, reader? Do you know that certain elements in the blood supply nourishment to the hair and that when these elements are lacking the hair ceases to receive nourishment, begins to fall out or turn grey or both and finally disappears altogether?

As the germs of typhoid fever find their easiest victims in people with run down systems.

So the tiny dandruff germ (that destructive agent of the devil) attacks the roots of hair, run down by lack of nourishment and though the process may be slow, these persistent dandruff germs, working night and day will, unless stopped in time, eventually accomplish their work of destruction and will leave as a monument to their aggressiveness a hairless head—a shameful condition that quickly becomes the object of the ridicule, jibes and jests of people who call themselves your friends.

How can this damnable, destructive work of the Dandruff germ be stopped?

Do it now, is the answer. If you have Dandruff, you must have dandruff germs and you are on the high road to that pitiful stage of the careless man's life when your friends change your name for you and re-christen you "Baldy."

The time to act is now—you can kill the germs of dandruff in one week—you can permanently remove every vestige of dandruff from your scalp in 10 days.

You can do this by using PARISIAN SAGE, the great French hair restorer, and if you don't do it you can have your money back from your druggist, who is authorized by us to return it to you.

All we ask is that you give it a fair trial and if Parisian Sage fails to cure dandruff—stop falling hair—make the hair soft, fluffy and beautiful. If it is not the best hair dressing you ever used, you can have your money back.

W. B. McPherson sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents per large bottle; so do other druggists; or by mail post-paid on receipt of 50 cents from Giroux Company, Rochester, N. Y.

P. S. There may be other Money Back hair restorers, but we never heard of them; did you?

Parisian Sage is the woman's favorite hair dressing; it has been used by the first ladies of France for many years.

IT IS TO LAUGH.

"Ha! You refuse me, then, proud beauty? Well, I know your reasons. Were I rich you would be but too glad to accept me!"

"Mayhap it is even so, Rupert Fitzgobler. But by my troth you would have to be a whole lot richer than anybody else in the world, I'll tell you that!"—Cleveland Leader.

Surgeon (to young recruit, who has no desire to serve his country, and also very little intelligence)—Have you any infirmity warranting your rejection?

"Yes, sir, I am short sighted."

"Prove it to me."

"Certainly. You see that nail down there in the wall? [Well, I do not see it.]—Annals.

Post—Here's a little poem which I recently composed. I read it to my mother, and she cried loud and long, so touching did she find it.

Editor—You ought to be ashamed of yourself. Take back your poem and promise me that you won't make that poor woman cry any more.—Rife.

Mr. Dugaffe (at a spiritualistic seance, in an awestruck voice, hearing the three traditional knocks)—Is it you or great Napoleon?

Voice (from without)—No, it isn't; it's the tailor.—Pele Mele.

"The man I marry," declared Miss Elder, "must be capable of great self-sacrifice."

"Yes," murmured Miss Younger, "he'll have to be."—Cleveland Leader.

Howell—"He is always saying, 'What fools these mortals be!'"

Powell—"He not only says it, but he acts it."—The Bohemian for July.

"Did you get on well as an actor?"

"Yes, I got on well enough, I guess, but I couldn't get off half quick enough."—Cleveland Leader.

"Did the audience applaud when Mrs. Hytton sang?" "No, when she stopped singing."—The Bohemian for July.

"Mrs. Brown says her baby can do all sorts of things." "But I trust she teaches it not to do so."—Puck.

INTERNAL TRADE SHOWS BIG GAINS

Especially True in Movement of Grain.

Cotton and Anthracite Coal Interstate Shipments Fell Off Appreciably.

THE BUREAU OF STATISTICS.

Internal trade movements of the United States for the first five months of the current year show, in the aggregate, appreciable gains over those for corresponding periods of either 1905 or 1904, according to reports received by the department through its bureau of statistics. This is particularly true with regard to grain, total receipts of which, at 15 important primary markets, aggregated 278,413,130 bushels during the period specified, in contrast with 238,152,976 for the corresponding months of 1905, and 241,415,131 in 1904. May receipts amounted to 47,370,293 bushels, compared with 33,079,958 in May, 1905, and 32,198,112 in 1904.

At Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis, St. Joseph and St. Paul live stock receipts during May totaled 3,176,093 head, against 3,098,178 received in May, 1905, and 2,689,636 in 1904. Receipts for a five-month period were 16,093,376 head in 1906, 15,417,593 in 1905, and 14,985,985 in 1904.

Cotton brought into sight during the present season, from September 1 to May 31, aggregated 10,393,403 bales, nearly 2,000,000 below corresponding receipts in 1904-5, but slightly in excess of those for 1903-4. The net overland movement during like periods amounted to 886,795 bales in 1905-6, 1,008,709 in 1904-5 and 896,076 in 1903-4, while the total domestic spinners' takings were 4,093,506 bales for the present season, 3,919,237 for the preceding one, and 3,745,491 for 1903-4. Of the current season's movement 2,176,866 bales were sent to northern mills and 1,916,640 to mills in the south.

Anthracite coal shipments from eastern producing regions, during May, amounted to 3,254,230 tons, compared with 6,005,158 for May, 1905, and 5,285,079 for May, 1904. For a five-month period similar shipments aggregated 19,658,484 tons in 1906, 24,872,945 in 1905, and 23,528,412 tons in 1904.

The estimated production of coke at Connelville during the first 22 weeks of the current year amounted to 6,102,794 tons, over 200,000 greater than for the corresponding weeks in 1905, and nearly 2,000,000 in excess of that for 1904.

Runs from wells in pipe line producing territory during May amounted to 3,158,045 barrels, against 3,970,173 in May, 1905. For the first five months of 1906 similar receipts aggregated 15,172,093 barrels, in contrast with 18,747,946 for the corresponding period in 1905. Regular deliveries during May totaled 3,874,981 in 1906 and 4,101,824 in 1905, while for the five-month period they amounted to 19,534,174 barrels in 1906 and 20,931,682 in 1905.

Freight shipped by water out of all domestic ports on the Great Lakes during May (excluding exports to Canada) aggregated 7,651,197 net tons, a loss of 708,912 tons if compared with similar movements for May, 1905, but a gain of 4,426,690 tons over those of May, 1904. In the latter instance, however, the heavy increase noted was almost entirely due to the strike of steamship employees during the spring and summer of 1904, which caused an almost complete suspension of traffic during its progress. Of the shipments for May, 1906, 4,893,755 net tons were ore and minerals, 1,283,253 tons coal, 472,044 tons logs and lumber, 283,714 tons grain and flaxseed, 127,517 tons flour and 650,914 tons unclassified freight.

Vessel clearances on the Great Lakes during May totaled 8,852 of 9,781,810 net tons, compared with 9,083 of 10,706,567 for May, 1905, and 4,730 of 2705,522 for May, 1904.

SPARROWS DROWN

HEAVY DOWNPOUR KNOCKS THEM FROM TREES.

Fifty Feathered Bodies Found by a Policeman and Buried by Tender Hearted Girls.

Last night's heavy rain storm is responsible for a wholesale drowning of sparrows and because of the fatality to the members of the feathered tribe, there was a general funeral this morning. Fifty little English sparrows sought shelter from the heavy downpour of rain in a big tree at the Brewery, colored boarding house, on Sixth street between Ohio and Tennessee streets last night. The downpour was too much for them. It beat in on them, wet their feathers and on account of the darkness, they were unable to see where to go. One by one they dropped and were drowned. Policeman Ed Alexander found the fifty little bodies on the pavement early this morning. Little girls later took them up and buried them.

TWO WARRANTS

ONE CHARGES SELLING WITHOUT LICENSE.

Two warrants were sworn out for W. C. Stanford, a former saloon-keeper, yesterday afternoon in Magistrate Charles Emery's court for selling intoxicants without a license and for conducting a disorderly place. It is alleged that he sells intoxicants in black bottles for soft drinks, and it is also stated that the county attorney who had the warrants issued, has an affidavit to the effect that whisky has been sold. Stanford conducts a stand near Wallace park. The disorderly house warrant was issued because of the fact that brawling characters are alleged to make the stand a landing place. The trial will be held Tuesday.

A Serious Mishap.

"Hello, Newlywed! When did you get back from your wedding trip?" "Yesterday."

"Have a good time?" "Yes, fine; only——"

"Only what?" "Oh, nothing."

"Well, of course, if you don't want to tell me, all right. You know I'll not repeat, but——"

"Well, I don't mind telling you, but don't let it go any farther."

"Sure, I'll not."

"Well, we did have a fine trip, as I said, although we met with an accident that temporarily marred the serenity of the journey. But you'll not repeat this?"

"Never in a thousand years."

"Well, you know there are a lot of short tunnels and snowsheds between here and Denver. The first one caught me in the smoking compartment and we were out of it before I could get to where my wife was sitting. But I was on the lookout for the next one, and made a run for her. I arrived just in time to get one kiss before we shot into daylight again."

"Yes; go on."

"That's about all. It wasn't my wife I had kissed."—The Pacific Monthly.

Successful Inquiry.

"When you go to New Zealand I wish you would inquire after my great-grandfather, Jeremiah Thompson."

"Certainly," said the traveler, and wherever he went he asked for news of the ancestor, but without avail. One day he was introduced to a fine old Maori of advanced age.

"Did you ever meet with an Englishman named Jeremiah Thompson?" he asked.

A smile passed over the Maori's face. "Meet him?" he repeated. "Why, I ate him!"

DIFFERENCE IN SIZE.

The prosecution of ice dealers and laundrymen in various cities for entering into conspiracies in restraint of trade, reflects a mellow light on the "Big Ones" against whom we have been railing these many months. It is often said the big trusts, far from being monsters, are natural products of our social system. Hence, great impetus to the socialistic propaganda. Still more recent discoveries convince us that trust promoters represent the natural development of our business ideals. If the trusts stripped of their most malignant attributes are inherently wrong, then the business principles by which many merchants are guided in their relations to the public are wrong—so, ebb the socialistic tide.

Investigations of conditions controlling the ice business in some of the cities disclose the fact that the manufacturing dealers operate on the same principle as the trust, so far as the obnoxious and immoral features are concerned. What further investigations will reveal along the line of local combinations to regulate the price of articles of domestic consumption is problematical, but we are beginning to see that the only difference between the big conspirators and the little ones, is the difference that exists between the big and the little of all species—capacity.

Pregnant with possibilities for the future is the action taken by the British government in recommending the reduction of the standing army, backed as it is by the significant agreement with Italy and France to do the same thing. The practical disarmament of the world will be brought about by excesses in the other extreme, just as all real reforms are born. For years Europe has been building ships and increasing armies, until bread riots, the terrible desperation of men impelled to violence by the sight of their own starving families, have become not uncommon. The peasants of continental Europe no longer can bear the burden of the heavy war tax in time of peace, and the maintenance of such huge military establishments is becoming a physical impossibility. Chimerical was called the czar's peace conference at The Hague, but it served to bring representatives of the governments together. Arbitration was not adopted, but having met once for the purpose, the next step is proving easier. England recently sold $50,000,000 worth of battle-ships, in good condition but obsolete, for $400,000. Common sense in national affairs will triumph just as it finally does in private affairs. As long as there is a cause belli there will be a fight; but, without entertaining malice toward the ship building industry or desiring the decadence of military society, we trust the next decade will see more steel glows in Europe with horses in front of them instead of women, and fewer steel bayonets with men behind them.

A careless duelist in Paris pricked his antagonist with his sword. A few more such occurrences as this will mark the decadence of the national sport in France.

The discovery of a conspiracy among the laundrymen of Cincinnati is not a manifestation of the "yellow peril" in America.

LIBRARIES SCHOOLS OF ANARCHY.

It has remained for Russian officialdom to discover in our American free libraries nurseries of crime, hotbeds of anarchy and armories of nihilism, furnishing forth, without money and without price weapons ready forged for aiming at the heart of organized government and for striking at the divine right of kings. How real this library danger has come to be regarded in Russia was brought to public attention by an arrest made last week in this city, when Henry Melnek was arraigned in Jefferson market police court, charged with abstracting two books from the Astor library. One of the volumes was an apparently innocent novel by Jules Verne, but the other was a work by Perez, entitled "Schriften," telling of the horrors of the Russian penal system in Siberia, and viewed in Russia as a highly seditious and pernicious publication.

It was the manner in which the arrest was effected that is significant. Spies of the czar, it is asserted, have for months been lurking in the Astor and other free libraries of New York, watching for persons who call for books dealing with revolutionary topics or treating of the manufacture of explosives. Such persons are noted and followed and kept under observation as possible plotters against the Muscovite government. What happens when the spies are convinced that their suspicions are well founded is not known, but from what can be gathered of the methods of the dreaded "third section," as exploited in contemporary fiction, the situation is fraught with ominous possibilities. In the case of Melnek, his alleged recklessness appears to have afforded the Russian secret police an opportunity for employing the machinery of the law. The fact that he had called for a book on the Russian penal system caused him to be marked for observation, and when, on the closing of the library, he was followed to his home it was learned so it is now charged, that he had taken the volume with him, instead of returning it to the desk.

Whether or not the malignant use to which our libraries are being put will have the effect of changing the direction of Mr. Carnegie's benefactions, it is too early to predict. Fortunately, there need as yet be little fear that libraries generally throughout the country will be shut to the public as a result of the disclosure. It is more likely that they will be kept open as convenient traps for catching the enemies of the Russian autocracy.—New York Tribune.

What Osteopathy Is.
The question is often asked "What is Osteopathy?" for some people have a very vague idea of this new science that is doing so much to aid mankind. Osteopathy, when well digested, is nothing but good sense and reason.

It is a method for treating disease by manipulation, to restore the normal condition of the nerve control and the blood supply to every organ of the body by removing the physical obstructions, or by stimulating, or checking, functional activity, as the conditions may require.

A diseased body is caused by some interference to a working part of the organism, and a correction of it brings restored health. Therefore, osteopathy finds the disturbance and, righting it, effects its cure.

The methods used, are scientific manipulation, and no medicines, and they are very successful.

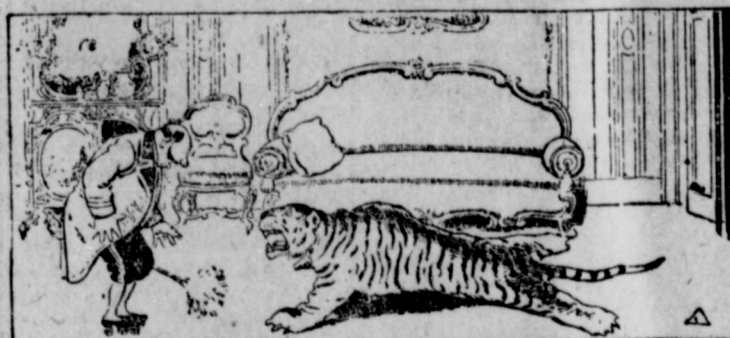

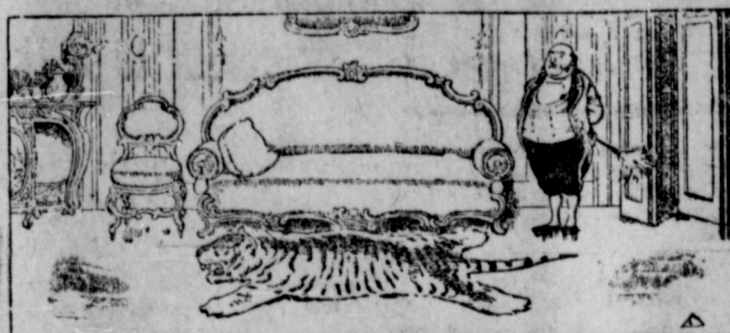

Some of the diseases in which osteopathic treatment has been the most effective are headaches of all kinds, nervous disorders, malaria and biliousness, drowsiness and faded conditions, indigestion in its many forms, kidney troubles, neuritis and rheumatism. It treats successfully, however nearly all diseases. If you are ailing, no matter what your particular trouble may be, I should like to have you call and let me tell you why Osteopathy will cure in your especial case. I do not claim that Osteopathy is a cure-all, but am frank and will tell you what it will do in any individual case, at the same time referring you to people who know, who will gladly tell you what the treatment has done for them.

DEATHS OF A DAY

Dr. Robert S. Coleman.

Dr. Robert S. Coleman, of Princeton, Ky., father of Dr. J. R. Coleman, of this city, who died yesterday at his home of apoplexy, born March 8, 1829, in Stewart county, Tenn., and was the child of William H. and Mary Gattila-Coleman. His father was a native of the Carolinas and came west in 1816. Dr. Coleman spent his early life on a plantation but later engaged in steamboating, farming and clerking. In 1855 he began studying medicine and moved to Henry county, Tenn., to complete his course. He graduated from the University of Nashville with honors in the medical department in 1862. He went into the Confederate army and was made a prisoner at Fort Holman, but later he was paroled. He returned to Henry county and practiced medicine until 1872 when he moved to Murray, Calloway county, remaining there until 1887 when he moved to Princeton. He married Miss Fannie A. Williams, of Henry county, Tenn., November 7, 1855, and three sons and two daughters were born. Those surviving are Dr. J. R. Coleman, of Paducah; James Coleman, of Murray, an attorney, and Mrs. Van Stille, of Benton, Marshall county. During his life Dr. Coleman held many important positions. He was a member of the first state board of medical examiners in the First congressional district and had served on the board of health in Murray and taken an active part in all matters pertaining to the betterment of health. He was also a chairman of the Calloway County Medical association and held a similar position in Caldwell county. He was a member of the Southwestern Kentucky Medical association. He affiliated with Paducah commandery Knights Templar, and at noon a delegation of local knights, headed by Mr. W. J. Hills, went up to attend the funeral. The funeral was set for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. R. Coleman has been in Chicago, but arrived to attend the funeral today.

He has one brother, T. E. Coleman, a merchant of Princeton. He was past master of several lodges of Masons. In the army he was attached to General Forrest's command. He formerly was president of the Southwestern Kentucky Medical association.

CROSSED WIRES

Indianapolis, Ind., July 14.—Patrolman James Dole was killed today while "pulling" a police patrol box. Crossed wires probably caused the accident. Ten other boxes were similarly affected. Ten patrolmen suffered severe shocks.

Corrupted Legislature.

Boston, July 14.—District Attorney Moran made public today his intention of investigating the railroad and the gas and electric light companies with reference to alleged violation of the public statutes by those corporations. Among the offenses charged to the railroads are the issuance of free passes to members of the legislature and discrimination against shippers in the transportation of merchandise.

IDEAL CIRCUS DAY,
SAYS MR. ROBINSONThe Rains Interfere Somewhat
With Conditions.Big Crowd Witnesses Unloading,
More See Parade, and Big Top Is Full.

PERFORMANCE AT 8 TONIGHT.

The big circus came in on the Illinois Central in four sections, hauled by eight locomotives, at an early hour this morning. The first section is "The Flying Squadron" and consists of cook-house, dining tent, horse stables and parade stuff, that is not used in either menagerie or circus. This evening at dusk this paraphernalia will be taken to the show train and loaded and hurried to Hopkinsville, the next town. When you see it going through the city do not think the big show is moving away.

Has His Dog.

Governor John F. Robinson, owner of the circus, is here with his people, horses and vast paraphernalia. He is dean of the business and is called by Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal the "Gladstone of the Circus Realm." In speaking of rainy weather this morning the governor said: "There was a time when a circus had trouble showing in the rain. In those old days the water poured through the tents and the girl with the Dolly Varden looked like a colorless postage stamp when she emerged from the tent. It is all changed now. Science is victor. The canvas is made waterproof; water runs off it like water off a duck's back. The brain of man has stored away other improvements and after while, some day, we will travel in air-ships and only come down to earth and give exhibitions when the license is right. We will not even look out on shake-down territory."

"Will the rain today affect the crowds and performance?" was asked him.

"Emphatically no. It came just right. The farmer can leave his field. The city folks are assured of comfort. The heat will not burn them up; There will be nothing to annoy them. Under the tents it is high and dry. It is an ideal circus day."

In the Yards.

Hundreds of people were in the railroad yards to see the unloading. An army of men and each at his place. All told there is on Governor Robinson's pay-roll 1,000 men, women and children. There is no larger show.

JUVENILE LAWS FAILURE.

Sheriffs' Association Told Statutes Accomplish no Good.

Des Moines, July 14.—Juvenile law as it is observed in Iowa, Illinois, Colorado and other states, was vigorously condemned today at the convention of the Interstate Sheriffs' association. C. W. Schnurr, president of the Iowa Sheriffs' association, claimed that the law failed to restrict the youthful criminal and was of no assistance in reform work.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS IMPROVING.

Mrs. Thompson, It Is Thought, Not Injured Internally.

Mrs. L. Thomas, of Mober, and daughter, Mrs. Blanche Thompson, of Gainesville, Tex., who were thrown from a buggy and injured in a collision with a locomotive on the Illinois Central, are reported better today. It is thought that Mrs. Thompson sustained no internal injuries.

A Question of Languages.

When Count Cassini, Russia's former ambassador to Washington, who is now enjoying his "promotion" to Madrid, first arrived in this country his command over the English language was, to put it mildly, very feeble, so when a reporter not long afterward was sent to interview him in his private suite at the Waldorf-Astoria the conversation languished from the start. At last the Russian's patience gave way. "Don't you speak French?" he asked impatiently. The newspaper man regretted that he did not. The ambassador's eyes flashed. "Every young man should learn French," he observed brusquely. "Every old diplomat should learn English," he quietly retorted the reporter as he vanished through the door.

Call to Arms in Salvador.

New York, July 14.—A telegram from Guatemala says fresh hostilities have taken place on the border. The invasion of the country by Salvadoran troops is considered to be a declaration of war. War is accepted here by official decree. The country has been placed under martial law, and there is a general call to arms.

Edison's Cigars.

Mr. Edison is a great smoker, but becomes so absorbed in his work that he often forgets he has a cigar in his mouth, says the Boston Post. He complained to his tobaccoist of the rapidity with which his cigars disappeared and could not believe he smoked them all himself. The dealer agreed to make some "faked cigars." "I'll fix 'em with horse-hair and hard rubber," he said. "Then you'll find that there will not be so many missing." Several weeks later Mr. Edison saw the tobaccoist again and said:

"Look here! I thought you were going to fix me some faked cigars?" "Why, I did!" exclaimed the other in hurt surprise. "Don't you remember the box with a green label—cigars tied with yellow ribbon?" Edison smiled reflectively. "I smoked them myself," he said.

Takes Her Life.

Louisville, Ky., July 14.—Lucy Messer, a pretty 16-year-old girl, killed herself by blowing out her brains with a shotgun. The girl had run away from home several days ago in company with Mary Simpson, a cousin. They were found in the mountains after two days and Miss Messer brought home, but the Simpson girl escaped and has not been heard from since. Miss Messer refused to give any explanation for running away and the cause of her suicide.

Steel Magnate Killed.

New York, July 14.—Harvey L. Schaffer, whose city home was at 787 Fifth avenue, and who was an uncle of John E. Phipps and a brother-in-law of Henry Phipps of Pittsburgh, was killed this morning when his automobile was run down by the Mountauk express on the Long Island railroad at Sayville. Andrew Peters, Mr. Schaffer's chauffeur, was only slightly injured.

Minneapolis, July 14.—While it has been announced that the president would not make a western trip before 1907, it was learned today that he had made a conditional promise to go deer hunting next November in Minnesota with John A. Greenway, range superintendent of the United States Steel company's mines on the Mesaba. Headquarters will be made at Hovey, Minn., which is in a country abounding in big game.

DEATHS OF A DAY

Dr. Robert S. Coleman.

Dr. Robert S. Coleman, of Princeton, Ky., father of Dr. J. R. Coleman, of this city, who died yesterday at his home of apoplexy, born March 8, 1829, in Stewart county, Tenn., and was the child of William H. and Mary Gattlin Coleman. His father was a native of the Carolinas and came west in 1816. Dr. Coleman spent his early life on a plantation but later engaged in steamboating, farming and clerking. In 1855 he began studying medicine and moved to Henry county, Tenn., to complete his course. He graduated from the University of Nashville with honors in the medical department in 1862. He went into the Confederate army and was made a prisoner at Fort Holman, but later he was paroled. He returned to Henry county and practiced medicine until 1872 when he moved to Murray, Calloway county, remaining there until 1887 when he moved to Princeton. He married Miss Fannie A. Williams, of Henry county, Tenn., November 7, 1855, and three sons and two daughters were born. Those surviving are Dr. J. R. Coleman, of Paducah; James Coleman, of Murray, an attorney, and Mrs. Van Stille, of Benton, Marshall county. During his life Dr. Coleman held many important positions. He was a member of the first state board of medical examiners in the first congressional district and had served on the board of health in Murray and taken an active part in all matters pertaining to the betterment of health. He was also a chairman of the Calloway County Medical association and held a similar position in Caldwell county. He was a member of the Southwestern Kentucky Medical association. He affiliated with Paducah commandery Knights Templar, and at noon a delegation of local knights, headed by Mr. W. J. Hills, went up to attend the funeral. The funeral was set for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. R. Coleman has been in Chicago, but arrived to attend the funeral today.

He has one brother, T. E. Coleman, a merchant of Princeton. He was past master of several lodges of Masons. In the army he was attached to General Forrest's command. He formerly was president of the Southwestern Kentucky Medical association.

CROSSED WIRES

Killed Policeman "Pulling" the Patrol Box.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 14.—Patrolman James Doley was killed today while "pulling" a police patrol box. Crossed wires probably caused the accident. Ten other boxes were similarly affected. Ten patrolmen suffered severe shocks.

Corrupted Legislature.

Boston, July 14.—District Attorney Moran made public today his intention of investigating the railroad and the gas and electric light companies with reference to alleged violation of the public statutes by those corporations. Among the offenses charged to the railroads are the issuance of free passes to members of the legislature and discrimination against shippers in the transportation of merchandise.

IDEAL CIRCUS DAY, SAYS MR. ROBINSON

The Rains Interfere Somewhat With Conditions.

Big Crowd Witnesses Unloading. More See Parade, and Big Top Is Full.

PERFORMANCE AT 8 TONIGHT.

The big circus came in on the Illinois Central in four sections, hauled by eight locomotives, at an early hour this morning. The first section is "The Flying Squadron" and consists of cook-house, dining tent, horse stables and parade stuff, that is not used in either menagerie or circus. This evening at dusk this paraphernalia will be taken to the show train and loaded and hurried to Hopkinsville, the next town. When you see it going through the city do not think the big show is moving away.

Has His Dog.

Governor John F. Robinson, owner of the circus, is here with his people, horses and vast paraphernalia. He is dean of the business and is called by Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal the "Gladstone of the Circus Realm." In speaking of rainy weather this morning the governor said: "There was a time when a circus had trouble showing in the rain. In those old days the water poured through the tents and the girl with the Dolly Varden looked like a colorless postage stamp when she emerged from the tent. It is all changed now. Science is victor. The canvas is made waterproof; water runs off like water off a duck's back. The brain of man has stored away other improvements and after while, some day, we will travel in air-ships and only come down to earth and give exhibitions when the license is right. We will not even look out on shake-down territory."

"Will the rain today affect the crowds and performance?" was asked him. "Emphatically no. It came just right. The farmer can leave his field. The city folks are assured of comfort. The heat will not burn them up. There will be nothing to annoy them. Under the tents it is high and dry. It is an ideal circus day."

In the Yards.

Hundreds of people were in the railroad yards to see the unloading. An army of men and each at his place. All told there is on Governor Robinson's pay-roll 1,000 men, women and children. There is no larger show.

JUVENILE LAWS FAILURE.

Sheriffs' Association Told Statutes Accomplish no Good.

Des Moines, July 14.—Juvenile law as it is observed in Iowa, Illinois, Colorado and other states, was vigorously condemned today at the convention of the Interstate Sheriffs' association. C. W. Schnurr, president of the Iowa Sheriffs' association, claimed that the law failed to restrict the youthful criminal and was of no assistance in reform work.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS IMPROVING.

Mrs. Thompson, It Is Thought, Not Injured Internally.

Mrs. L. Thomas, of Melber, and daughter, Mrs. Blanche Thompson, of Gainesville, Tex., who were thrown from a buggy and injured in a collision with a locomotive on the Illinois Central, are reported better today. It is thought that Mrs. Thompson sustained no internal injuries.

A Question of Languages.

When Count Cassini, Russia's former ambassador to Washington, who is now enjoying his "promotion" to Madrid, first arrived in this country his command over the English language was, to put it mildly, very feeble, so when a reporter not long afterward was sent to interview him in his private suite at the Waldorf-Astoria the conversation languished from the start. At last the Russian's patience gave way. "Don't you speak French?" he asked impatiently. The newspaper man regretted that he did not. The ambassador's eyes flashed. "Every young man should learn French," he observed brusquely. "Every old diplomat should learn English," quietly retorted the reporter as he vanished through the door.

Call to Arms in Salvador.

New York, July 14.—A telegram from Guatemala says fresh hostilities have taken place on the border. The invasion of the country by Salvadoran troops is considered to be a declaration of war. War is accepted here by official decree. The country has been placed under martial law, and there is a general call to arms.

MANGLED

WAS BODY OF UNFORTUNATE SECTION HAND.

Lee Elliott Falls From Car and Is Dragged for Several Yards Near Elva.

Last Friday night twenty-two people of Elva boarded a hand car and started to a sanctification meeting up near Fristoe. They had only proceeded about 200 yards when Lee Elliott, a section hand, who was working the front end of the car, fell off backward and the car ran over him, rolling him over two or three times. He was terribly mangled and from the start there was no hope of his recovery.

WATER FROM BIG STREAM.

Sent to London to Christen a Young Duke With.

Vicksburg, Miss., July 14.—Manager E. A. Archer of the Southern Express company, is much elated over his connection with a dual christening, as he has furnished the water for the formal naming of the future Duke of Manchester. He received this interesting bit of information today in letters from the legal representatives of the family and the express agent in New York, who, ten days ago, wired him here to rush by that day's express a jug of Mississippi river water, drawn from the river here, and sealed and expressed with the official seal of a justice of the peace that the water was "the real thing." His letters from New York today are the sequel to the rather romantic incident as he is given the information that the water was forwarded from New York to London, on the night of July 7, to be used in the christening of the little duke there. The Duke of Manchester married Miss Zimmerman of Cincinnati and that is the grandson of Mrs. Yznaga, who lives just opposite Natchez. It is surmised that the desire to christen his son with Mississippi river water arises from sentiment associated with the great river that flows along by the home of his reverend grandparents.

LOCKED IN A DARK ROOM.

Two Brothers Slay Giant After a Desperate Fight.

Cleveland, O., July 14.—A desperate struggle between two brothers and their arch enemy in a dark room, the doors of which had been locked, was told at the coroner's inquest over the body of Mike Pardovitch yesterday. The fight occurred a week ago, but the story did not become public until yesterday afternoon. Pardovitch was a giant and the terror of the Austrian colony in Newburg. He bore a grudge of years' standing against Steve and Mike Dergitz, brothers, and entered their home at night to "fix them," as he said. Ten brothers fled, and the three men locked themselves in a room in close deadly embrace. Knives flashed and clashed sharply. Smothered exclamations mingled with grunts of exertion as the three in silence fought to kill and live. The fight lasted fifteen minutes, ending when the giant had been stricken down and killed. Mike Dergitz is held for murder. His brother has disappeared.

COFFEE RATE WAR

In Prospect Owing to Deal Made By Illinois Central.

New Orleans, July 14.—The deal effected a few days ago between the Illinois Central railroad and the Lamport and Holt Steamship company, by which New Orleans was put on the same footing as New York, in the coffee import trade, has stirred up a hornet's nest. At a meeting of the coffee merchants today, the proposition was rejected, on the ground that it would practically place the coffee import trade in the hands of one railroad part of the deal being that the ships should land at the Stuyvesant docks, and the Illinois Central road was to switch the coffee to other lines. The upshot of the matter may be the establishment of an independent steamship line, and a coffee war which would be far reaching in its results.

ADULTERATIONS RESULT IN FINE

Lexington Court Taxes Company Total of $25.

Louisville's Strenuous Magistrate Will Turn His Attention to "Red Light."

SUICIDES AT THE HOSPITAL.

Lexington, July 14.—Swift & Co., the Chicago meat packing firm was fined $25 and costs in the circuit court Friday morning, upon a plea of guilty, to the charge of selling adulterated food. A similar verdict on a similar plea was returned against Flood & company, a local jobbing firm, and two cases against R. L. Crutchfield were dismissed upon motion of the commonwealth.

These judgments constitute an important feature in the pure food agitation in view of the fact that the new federal law will soon be in full force and effect.

Prior to the new federal law it was impossible for the state to reach the original packer provided he resided and carried on his business without the state. Hence, the only remedy given to the advocates of pure food was to have the local jobbers indicted for retailing the adulterated articles of food and through the jobbers reach the packers in an indirect manner. Now the packers can be got at and this will mean a cessation of local prosecutions except in cases wherein the jobbers or retailer sells or offers for sale an article of adulterated food, knowing it to be adulterated, and not having it so labelled as to show the adulterants used in order to put the customer on guard.

Mayfield, July 14.—Mr. Will Buck, a young man about 21 years old, a citizen of Mayfield, was coming out from Paducah early Friday morning on a coal train, and while stepping from one car to another at Hickory Grove, his foot slipped and he fell to the ground. He fell on his face, breaking his nose, spitting his lips and knocking out several teeth.

After Red Light.

Louisville, July 14.—Violators of the Sunday law are not the only ones that are to come into the limelight, via Magistrate Hoffman's court, according to Constable Bartholomew, who has caused warrants to be issued against so many violators during the past few weeks. This morning Constable Bartholomew gave out a statement, in which he says that a wholesale war will be inaugurated against the denizens of the "red-light" section throughout the city.

The Want and Exchange Market of Paducah

The results from just one or two insertions of a little want ad are sometimes remarkable.—In fact, many times they are.

Newspaper readers are realizing this more every day, a fact which is shown by the big mass of want ads carried in the recognized best papers in a city.

Take the papers close to the people, —the most popular, and most widely circulated, and you will find the greatest number of these little want ads.

In Paducah, THE SUN carries the bulk of the want ads, and to note the ebb and flow of the number is one of the most interesting things in connection with its publication. Some days here are two columns and the next day they run down to one, rarely ever less.

Suppose you try one of these little ads the next time you need anything or have anything to dispose of. The want columns of a paper are virtually the market place of a town and you will be surprised that there is always a demand for anything you have, or some one who has to sell, probably what you want.

WATER FROM BIG STREAM.

Sent to London to Christen a Young Duke With.

Vicksburg, Miss., July 14.—Manager E. A. Archer of the Southern Express company, is much elated over his connection with a ducal christening, as he has furnished the water for the formal naming of the future Duke of Manchester. He received this interesting bit of information today in letters from the legal representatives of the family and the express agent in New York, who, ten days ago, wired him here to rush by that day's express a jug of Mississippi river water, drawn from the river here, and sealed and expressed with the official seal of a justice of the peace that the water was "the real thing." His letters from New York today are the sequel to the rather romantic incident as he is given the information that the water was forwarded from New York to London, on the night of July 7, to be used in the christening of the little duke there. The Duke of Manchester married Miss Zimmerman of Cincinnati and that is the grandson of Mrs. Yznaga, who lives just opposite Natchez. It is surmised that the desire to christen his son with Mississippi river water arises from sentiment associated with the great river that flows along by the home of his reverend grandparents.

LOCKED IN A DARK ROOM.

Two Brothers Slay Giant After a Desperate Fight.

Cleveland, O., July 14.—A desperate struggle between two brothers and their arch enemy in a dark room, the doors of which had been locked, was told at the coroner's inquest over the body of Mike Pardovitch yesterday. The fight occurred a week ago, but the story did not become public until yesterday afternoon. Pardovitch was a giant and the terror of the Austrian colony in Newburg. He bore a grudge of years' standing against Steve and Mike Dergitz, brothers, and entered their home at night to "fix them," as he said. Ten boarders fled, and the three men locked themselves in a room in close deadly embrace. Knives flashed and clashed sharply. Smothered exclamations mingled with grunts of exertion as the three in silence fought to kill and live. The fight lasted fifteen minutes, ending when the giant had been stricken down and killed. Mike Dergitz is held for murder. His brother has disappeared.

COFFEE RATE WAR

In Prospect Owing to Deal Made by Illinois Central.

New Orleans, July 14.—The deal effected a few days ago between the Illinois Central railroad and the Lamport and Holt Steamship company, by which New Orleans was put on the same footing as New York, in the coffee import trade, has stirred up a hornet's nest. At a meeting of the coffee merchants today, the proposition was rejected, on the ground that it would practically place the coffee import trade in the hands of one railroad part of the deal being that the ships should land at the Stuyvesant docks, and the Illinois Central road was to switch the coffee to other lines. The upshot of the matter may be the establishment of an independent steamship line, and a coffee war, which would be far reaching in its results.

ADULTERATIONS RESULT IN FINE

Lexington Court Taxes Company Total of $25.

Louisville's Strenuous Magistrate Will Turn His Attention to "Red Light."

SUICIDES AT THE HOSPITAL.

Lexington, July 14.—Swift & Co., the Chicago meat packing firm was fined $25 and costs in the circuit court Friday morning, upon a plea of guilty, to the charge of selling adulterated food. A similar verdict on a similar plea was returned against Flood & company, a local jobbing firm, and two cases against R. L. Crutchfield were dismissed upon motion of the commonwealth.

These judgments constitute an important feature in the pure food agitation in view of the fact that the new federal law will soon be in full force and effect.

Prior to the new federal law it was impossible for the state to reach the original packer provided he resided and carried on his business without the state. Hence, the only remedy given to the advocates of pure food was to have the local jobbers indicted for retailing the adulterated articles of food and through the jobbers reach the packers in an indirect manner. Now the packers can be got at and this will mean a cessation of local prosecutions except in cases wherein the jobbers or retailer sells or offers for sale an article of adulterated food, knowing it to be adulterated, and not having it so labelled as to show the adulterants used in order to put the customer on guard.

Falls From Train.

Mayfield, July 14.—Mr. Will Buck, a young man about 21 years old, a citizen of Mayfield, was coming out from Paducah early Friday morning on a coal train, and while stepping from one car to another at Hickory Grove, his foot slipped and he fell to the ground. He fell on his face, breaking his nose, splitting his lips and knocking out several teeth.

After Red Light.

Louisville, July 14.—Violators of the Sunday law are not the only ones that are to come into the limelight, via Magistrate Hoffman's court, according to Constable Bartholomew, who has caused warrants to be issued against so many violators during the past few weeks. This morning Constable Bartholomew gave out a statement, in which he says that a wholesale war will be inaugurated against the denizens of the "red-light" section throughout the city.

Suicide at Hospital.

Owensboro, Ky., July 14.—Mrs. Blanche Collins committed suicide at an early hour this morning by plunging head first from a window in the city hospital. Mrs. Collins had been sent to the hospital to be treated for temporary insanity and had made a previous attempt at suicide by leaping down the hospital steps. After this occurrence she was strapped to the bed, but succeeded in slipping her straps this morning.

Six Men Injured.

Owensboro, Ky., July 14.—An explosion of gas in a room of the Black Diamond Coal and Coke company mine at Drakesboro today, injured six men, two of whom will die. The fatally injured are Edward Boyd and Thomas Cressy. The seriously injured are Raymond Bennett, Benjamin Holman, Edward O'Neil and William Garrett. The mine in which the explosion occurred is one of the largest in Western Kentucky.

Postmaster Primary.

Mayfield, Ky., July 14.—The Republicans here will petition Congressman J. B. Bennett to use his influence in securing the consent of the post-office department to abide by the result of a primary election in selecting a postmaster. The postmaster's term expired last February, and no appointment has been made, owing to factions for and against the incumbent.

Insane Patient Ends His Life.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 14.—W. C. Kyndendall, a patient at the Western Kentucky asylum for the insane, committed suicide last night by hanging himself with the sheet from his bed, which he tied through the transom over the door. He had never exhibited any suicidal mania, but suffered considerably from cancer. He was fifty-nine years of age and was sent here from Warren county, of which he was formerly a prominent citizen.

The Want and Exchange Market of Paducah

The results from just one or two insertions of a little want ad are sometimes remarkable.—In fact, many times they are.

Newspaper readers are realizing this more every day, a fact which is shown by the big mass of want ads carried in the recognized best papers in a city.

Take the papers close to the people, —the most popular, and most widely circulated and you will find the greatest number of these little want ads.

In Paducah, THE SUN carries the bulk of the want ads, and to note the ebb and flow of the number is one of the most interesting things in connection with its publication. Some days here are two columns and the next day they run down to one, rarely ever less.

Suppose you try one of these little ads the next time you need anything or have anything to dispose of. The want columns of a paper are virtually the market place of a town and you will be surprised that there is always a demand for anything you have, or some one who has to sell, probably what you want.

PADUCAH WILL GET SOME OF THE WORK

Department Heads of Illinois
Central Meet Monday.

Will Outline Plans for Distribution of Fiscal Appropriation Among Divisions.

LOCAL NEWS FROM RAILROADS.

There will be an annual meeting of superintendents, roadmasters and master mechanics of the Illinois Central road on Monday morning at 10 o'clock in Chicago, and Superintendent A. H. Egan, Roadmaster F. L. Thompson and Master Mechanic R. J. Turnbull, of the Louisville division of the road, will go.

The object of the meeting is to discuss the fiscal year just closed, proposed improvements and the business of the system in general. Every superintendent, roadmaster and master mechanic is expected to be in attendance. Improvements will be suggested and plans made for outlining the disposition of the appropriation for the new fiscal year. The road carries on its improvements much as do municipalities, appropriating so much money to each department and division.

Paducah will probably be directly interested in the meeting as the Louisville division will come in for some of the improvements to be suggested.

Engineers "go slow" over the Tennessee street crossing since the accident Thursday morning which injured two women, and the greatest of caution is exercised. Orders have been issued, requiring engineers to have their engines entirely under control—to be able to stop in a few feet. The whistle is blown at intervals on the approach.

H. R. Safford, assistant chief engineer of the Illinois Central, passed through the city at noon from the south en route to Louisville on business. Mr. Safford is making a tour of the road, looking after the many improvements to be made.

J. T. Skinner, who caused the arrest of Clarence Ingram for desertion from the United States army, has been notified by the war department at Washington that he must deliver Ingram to the nearest army post, which is Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis. He will leave today with Ingram.

BAR ASSOCIATION

Passes Resolutions on Death of Hon. D. L. Sanders.

We, your committee respectfully report the following resolutions to wit:

Be it resolved by the members of the bar, and the officials of McCracken county, that we have heard of the death of Judge D. L. Sanders with profound sorrow, and sadly realize that in his demise the bar has been deprived of one of its most distinguished and worthy members, and the city, which had so long and signally honored him, has lost one of its most vigilant, conservative, trustworthy and fearless officials, whose place upon the bench it will be difficult to supply and that society at large has sustained an irreparable loss to its citizenship. Whether upon the bench, presiding as a court, or at the bar as an attorney or commingling with his friends upon the streets, his deportment was ever gentle and kind towards all with whom he came in contact.

Second: That we tender to the relatives and members of the bereaved family of our departed brother our deepest and truest sympathy, and ask that a copy of the proceedings of this meeting be presented to his family as a mark of our friendship and esteem.

Third: That these resolutions be presented to the judges of the McCracken circuit, and county courts and to the Paducah police court with the request that they be spread upon the records of their respective courts on pages set apart and dedicated to that purpose, and that they be published in the Paducah Daily Sun, the News-Democrat and The Paducah Daily Register.

Counselling a Reporter.

Many years ago the late Sir John Macdonald, premier of Canada, was present at a public dinner at which he was expected to deliver a rather important speech. In the conviviality of the occasion he forgot the more serious duty of the evening, and when, at a late hour, he rose, his speech was by no means so luminous as it might have been. The reporter, knowing that it would not do to print his notes as they stood, called on Sir John next day and told him that he was not quite sure of having secured an accurate report. He was invited to read over his notes, but he had not gone far when Sir John interrupted him with "That is not what I said." "Let me repeat my remarks," he then walked up and down the room and delivered a most impressive speech in the hearing of the amused reporter, who took down every word as it fell from his lips. Having thanked Sir John for his courtesy, he was taking his leave when he was recalled to receive this admonition: "Young man, allow me to give this word of advice: Never again attempt to report a public speaker when you are drunk."

Something, Anyhow.

A well-known humorist writer was entertaining a friend at his apartment one evening recently.

"Will you have a cigar?" he asked the visitor.

"Yes, I will, thanks," was the response.

Investigation proved, however, that the box was empty.

"Say, if you got a quarter I'll send the boy out for a couple," the writer suggested.

"Dead broke," was the discouraging reply.

The humorist pondered for a minute, then his face lit up, and, throwing open his typewriter cabinet, he rattled the machine at a lively rate for a short time.

"That'll fix it," he said, waving a sheet of paper. "There's a joke that will pay for a dozen cigars."

"But you have to sell the joke first," the friend protested.

The smile faded from the other's face.

"That's so, I forgot that," he said sadly. "But I tell you what," he added brightening up, "we'll read the joke!"—American Spectator.

She Knew Hiram's Voice.

An astonishingly fat couple boarded a Chicago sleeper not long ago, and secured two berths—the upper and lower of a section. It was with considerable difficulty that the man achieved his lofty couch, but it was at last accomplished, and the car sank to rest.

About the middle of the night the train was sidetracked for a short while, and, as it happened, was shunted in beside a car loaded with very much discomfited and protesting hogs the noise of whose bawling ascended to the stars.

"Oh, Laws!" the occupant of the lower berth was heard to groan: "Just listen to that! Hiram has started snoring, and I can't get up there to make him turn over!"—American Spectator.

WAR ON LOAFERS TO START MONDAY

Chief Collins Issues Ultimatum to "Never Sweats."

Will Enforce Vagrancy Law Against All Who Have No Visible Means of Support.

GREAT DEMAND FOR LABORERS

All "moochers," loafers, bums, and those who refuse to work, of both color will have to take to some honorable means of a livelihood by Monday or suffer the consequences.

This is the edict published from the office of Chief of Police James Collins this morning and "it goes." It is the result of a suggestion which appeared in the columns of The Sun and is a very satisfactory move, which will be generally lauded.

The fact that hundreds of both white and black men loaf about the saloons and public places refusing to work has necessitated this action, and it is work, leave town or serve a term in the city prison for vagrancy. The traction company and other corporations which have experienced trouble in securing labor had to import men to do their work. Yet there are many in Paducah who are not working and who are nuisances because of the fact.

"What I want to do is to rid the city of all objectionable characters, and those who will not work will have to suffer the consequences," Chief Collins declared this morning. "We are tired of seeing these loafers hanging about. I will summon every 'bum' before Police Judge E. H. Puryear Monday, when we see them idle and it will not be merely a threat this time. They will go, and I expect to do quite a business next week."

Paducah's Pro Rata of State School Fund.

A circular from the state superintendent's office shows that Kentucky schools this year will receive $3.30 for each school child, the largest appropriation ever made the schools by the state. Paducah schools will receive $20,914.80, the school census of Paducah being 6,343.

In the Bishop's Carriage

By MIRIAM NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"Lars should have good memories," he sneered. "Miss Omar said she was an orphan, you remember, and had not a relative in the world."

"Did she say that? Did Nora say that?" I exclaimed, piteously. "Oh, what a little liar she is! I suppose she thought it made her more interesting to be so alone, more appealing to kind-hearted gentlemen like yourself. I hope she wasn't ungrateful to you, too, as she was to that kind Mr. Latimer, before he found her out. And she had such a good position there, too!"

I wanted to look at him, oh, I wanted to! But it was my role to sit there with downcast eyes, just the picture of holy grief. I was the good one—the good, shocked sister, and though I wasn't a bit afraid of anything he could do to me, or any game he could put up, I yearned to make him believe me—just because he was so suspicious, so wickedly smart, so sure he was on.

But his very silence sort of told me he almost believed, or that he was laying a trap.

"Will you tell me," he said, "how you—your sister got Latimer to lie for her?"

"Mr. Latimer—lie! Oh, you don't know him. He expected a lady to read to him that very evening. He had never seen her, and when Nora walked into the garden—"

"After getting a skirt somewhere."

"Yes—the housekeeper's, it happened to be her evening out—why, he just naturally supposed Nora was Miss Omar."

"Ah! then her name isn't Omar. What might it be?"

"I'd rather not tell—if you don't mind."

"But when Latimer found out she had the diamonds—he did find out?"

"She confessed to him. Nora's not really so bad a girl as—"

"Very interesting! But it doesn't happen to be Latimer's version. And you say Latimer wouldn't lie."

I got pale—but the paleness was on the inside of me. Think I was going to flinch before a chump like Morriway, even if I had walked straight into his trap?

"It isn't?" I exclaimed.

"No. Latimer's note to Mrs. Kingdon said the diamonds were found in the bell-boy's jacket the thief had left behind him."

"Well! It only shows what a bad habit lying is. Nora must have fibbed to me, for the pure pleasure of fibbing. I'll never dare to trust her again. Do you believe then that she didn't have anything to do with the hotel robbery?"

I do hope so. It's one less sin on her wicked head. It's hard, having such a girl in the family! Oh, wasn't I grieved!

He looked me straight in the eye. I looked at him. I was unutterably sad about that tough sister of mine, and I vowed I looked holy then, though I never did before and may never again.

"Well, I only saw her in the twilight," he said, slowly, watching my face all the time. "You two sisters are certainly miraculously alike."

The train was slowing down, and I got up with my basket. I stood right before him, my full face turned toward him.

"Are we?" I asked, simply. "Don't you think it's more the expression" than anything else, and the voice Nora's really much fairer than I am Good-by."

He watched me as I went out. I felt his eyes on the back of my jacket and I was tempted to turn at the door and make a face at him. But I knew something better and safer than that. I waited till the train was just pulling out, and then, standing below his window, I motioned to him to raise it.

He did.

"I thought you were going to get out here," I called. "Are you sure you don't belong in Sing Sing, Mr. Morriway?"

I can see his face yet, Mag, and every time I think of it, it makes me nearly die of laughing. He had actually been fooled another time. It was worth the trip up there, to make a guy of him once more.

And whether it was or not, Mag, it was all I got, after all. For—would you believe Tom Dorgan would turn out such a sorehead? He's kicked up such a row ever since he got there that it's the dark cell for him and solitary confinement. Think of it—for Tom!

I begged, I bluffed, I cried, I coaxed, but many's the Nance Olden that has played her game against the rules of Sing Sing and lost. They wouldn't even let me leave the things for him, or give him a message from me. And back to the station I had to carry the basket, and all the schemes I had to make old Tom Dorgan grin.

All the way back I had him in my mind. He's a tiger—Tom—when he's roused. I could see him, shut up there by himself, with not a soul to talk to, with not a human eye to look into, with not a thing on earth to do—Tom, who's action itself! He never saw much of a thinker, and I never saw him read even a newspaper. What would he do to kill the time?

Can't you see him there, at bay, back on his haunches, cursing and cursing, alone in the everlasting black silence?

I saw nothing else. Wherever I turned my eyes, that terrible picture was before me. And always it was just on the verge of becoming something else—something worse. He could throttle the world with his bare hands, if it had but one neck, in the mood he must be in now.

It was when I couldn't bear it a moment longer that I set my mind to find something else to think of.

I found it, Mag. Do you know what it was? It was just three words—of Obermuller's. "Earn it now."

After all, Miss Monahan, this graft of honesty they all preach so much about hasn't anything mysterious in it. All it is, is putting your wits to work according to the rules of the game and not against them. I was driven to it—the thought of big Tom crouching for a spring in the dark cell up yonder sent me whirling out into the thinking place, like the picture of the soul in the big book at Latimer's I read out of. And first thing you know, 'pon honor, Mag, it was as much fun planning how to "earn it now" as any lifting I ever schemed. It's getting the best of people that always charmed me—and here was a way to fool 'em according to wits.

So busy I was making it all up, that the train pulled into the station before I knew it. I gave a last thought to that poor old hyena of a Tom, and then put him out of my mind. I had other fish to fry. Straight down to Mother Doughty I went, on my way up to Sing Sing, lost her basket, and Nance Olden found it; it ought to be worth a good deal."

She grinned. You couldn't make old Doughty believe that the Lord Himself wouldn't steal if He got a chance. And she knows the chances that come butting up against Nancy Olden.

Why did I lie to her? Not for practice, I assure you. She'd have beaten me down to the last cent if she thought it was mine, but she always thinks there'll be a find for her in something that's stolen. So I let her think I'd stolen it in the railway station, and we came to terms.

With what she gave me I bought a wig. Mag, I want you some day, when you can get off, to come and see that wig. I shouldn't wonder but you'd recognize it. It's red, of very coarse hair, but a wonderful color, and so long it—yes, it might be your own, Mag Monahan, it's so much like it. I went to the theater and got my Charity rig, took it home, and sat for hours there just looking at 'em both. When evening came I was ready to "earn it now."

You see, Obermuller had given me the whole day to be away, and neither Gray nor the other three Charities expected me back. I had to do it on the sly, you easy Mag! Yes, it was partly because I love to cheat, but more because I was bound to have my chance once whether anybody else enjoyed it or not.

I came to the theater in my Charity rig and the wig. It looked as if I'd slept in it, and it came down to the dragged hem of the skirt. All the way there I walked like you, Mag. Once, when a newsboy grinned at me and shouted "Carrots!" I grinned back—your own, old Cruelty grin, Mag. I vowed I felt so much like you—as you used to be—that when I lurched out on the stage at last, stumbling over my shoe laces and trying to push the hair out of my eyes, you'd have sworn it was little Mag Monahan making her debut in the Cruelty board room.

Oh, Mag, Mag, you darling Mag! Did you ever hear a whole house, a great big theater full of a peevish vaudeville audience, just rise at you, give one roar of laughter they hadn't expected at all to give, and then settle down to giggle at every move you made.

Girl alive, I just had 'em! They couldn't take their eyes off me. If I squirmed, they howled. If I stood on one foot, scratching the torn leg of my stocking with the other—you know, Mag!—they yelled. If I grinned, they just roared.

Oh, Mag, can't you see? Don't you understand? I was it. The center of the stage I carried round with me—it was just Nance Olden. And for ten minutes Nance had nothing to do but to play with 'em. 'Pon my life, Mag, it's just like stealing; the old craft exactly; it's so fascinating, so busy, and risky, except that they play the game with you and pay you and love you to fool 'em.

When the curtain fell it was different. Gray, followed by the Charities, all clean and spick-and-span and—not in it; not even on the edge of it—stormed up to Obermuller standing at the wings.

"I'll quit the show here and now," she squawked. "It's a shame, a beastly shame. How dare you play me such a trick, Fred Obermuller? I never was treated so in my life—to have that dirty little wretch come tumbling on like that, without even so much as your telling me you'd made up all this new business for her! It's indecent, anyway. Why, I lost my cue. There was a gap for a full minute. The whole act was such a ghastly failure that I—"

"That you'd better go out now and make your prettiest bow, Gray. Phew! Listen to the house roar. That's what I call applause. Go on now."

She went.

Me? I didn't say a word. I looked at Obermuller and—and I just did like this. Yes, winked, Mag Monahan. I was so crazy, happy I had to, didn't I?

But do you know what he did? Do you know what he did?

Well, I suppose I am screaming and the Trojans will put me out, but—he just—winked—back!

And then Gray came trailing back into the wings, and the shrieking and thumping and whistling out in front just went on—and on—and on. Um! I just listened and loved it—every thump of it. And I stood there like a demure little kitten; or more like Mag Monahan after she'd had a good licking, and was good and quiet. And I never so much as budged till Obermuller said:

"Well, Nance, you have earned it. The gall of you! But it only proves that Fred Obermuller never yet bought a gold brick. Only let me in on your racket next time. There, go on—take it. It's yours."

Oh, to have Fred Obermuller say things like that to you!

He gave me a bit of a push. "Twas just a love-pat. I stumbled out on to the stage."

I found it, Mag. Do you know what it was? It was just three words—of Obermuller's. "Earn it now."

Girl alive, I just had 'em! They couldn't take their eyes off me. If I squirmed, they howled. If I stood on one foot, scratching the torn leg of my stocking with the other—you know, Mag!—they yelled. If I grinned, they just roared.

Oh, Mag, can't you see? Don't you understand? I was it. The center of the stage I carried round with me—it was just Nance Olden. And for ten minutes Nance had nothing to do but to play with 'em. 'Pon my life, Mag, it's just like stealing; the old craft exactly; it's so fascinating, so busy, and risky, except that they play the game with you and pay you and love you to fool 'em.

When the curtain fell it was different. Gray, followed by the Charities, all clean and spick-and-span and—not in it; not even on the edge of it—stormed up to Obermuller standing at the wings.

"I'll quit the show here and now," she squawked. "It's a shame, a beastly shame. How dare you play me such a trick, Fred Obermuller? I never was treated so in my life—to have that dirty little wretch come tumbling on like that, without even so much as your telling me you'd made up all this new business for her! It's indecent, anyway. Why, I lost my cue. There was a gap for a full minute. The whole act was such a ghastly failure that I—"

"That you'd better go out now and make your prettiest bow, Gray. Phew! Listen to the house roar. That's what I call applause. Go on now."

She went.

Me? I didn't say a word. I looked at Obermuller and—and I just did like this. Yes, winked, Mag Monahan. I was so crazy, happy I had to, didn't I?

But do you know what he did? Do you know what he did?

Well, I suppose I am screaming and the Trojans will put me out, but—he just—winked—back!

And then Gray came trailing back into the wings, and the shrieking and thumping and whistling out in front just went on—and on—and on. Um! I just listened and loved it—every thump of it. And I stood there like a demure little kitten; or more like Mag Monahan after she'd had a good licking, and was good and quiet. And I never so much as budged till Obermuller said:

"Well, Nance, you have earned it. The gall of you! But it only proves that Fred Obermuller never yet bought a gold brick. Only let me in on your racket next time. There, go on—take it. It's yours."

Oh, to have Fred Obermuller say things like that to you!

He gave me a bit of a push. "Twas just a love-pat. I stumbled out on to the stage."

I found it, Mag. Do you know what it was? It was just three words—of Obermuller's. "Earn it now."

After all, Miss Monahan, this graft of honesty they all preach so much about hasn't anything mysterious in it. All it is, is putting your wits to work according to the rules of the game and not against them. I was driven to it—the thought of big Tom crouching for a spring in the dark cell up yonder sent me whirling out into the thinking place, like the picture of the soul in the big book at Latimer's I read out of. And first thing you know, 'pon honor, Mag, it was as much fun planning how to "earn it now" as any lifting I ever schemed. It's getting the best of people that always charmed me—and here was a way to fool 'em according to wits.

So busy I was making it all up, that the train pulled into the station before I knew it. I gave a last thought to that poor old hyena of a Tom, and then put him out of my mind. I had other fish to fry. Straight down to Mother Doughty I went, on my way up to Sing Sing, lost her basket, and Nance Olden found it; it ought to be worth a good deal."

She grinned. You couldn't make old Doughty believe that the Lord Himself wouldn't steal if He got a chance. And she knows the chances that come butting up against Nancy Olden.

Why did I lie to her? Not for practice, I assure you. She'd have beaten me down to the last cent if she thought it was mine, but she always thinks there'll be a find for her in something that's stolen. So I let her think I'd stolen it in the railway station, and we came to terms.

With what she gave me I bought a wig. Mag, I want you some day, when you can get off, to come and see that wig. I shouldn't wonder but you'd recognize it. It's red, of very coarse hair, but a wonderful color, and so long it—yes, it might be your own, Mag Monahan, it's so much like it. I went to the theater and got my Charity rig, took it home, and sat for hours there just looking at 'em both. When evening came I was ready to "earn it now."

You see, Obermuller had given me the whole day to be away, and neither Gray nor the other three Charities expected me back. I had to do it on the sly, you easy Mag! Yes, it was partly because I love to cheat, but more because I was bound to have my chance once whether anybody else enjoyed it or not.

I came to the theater in my Charity rig and the wig. It looked as if I'd slept in it, and it came down to the dragged hem of the skirt. All the way there I walked like you, Mag. Once, when a newsboy grinned at me and shouted "Carrots!" I grinned back—your own, old Cruelty grin, Mag. I vowed I felt so much like you—as you used to be—that when I lurched out on the stage at last, stumbling over my shoe laces and trying to push the hair out of my eyes, you'd have sworn it was little Mag Monahan making her debut in the Cruelty board room.

Oh, Mag, Mag, you darling Mag! Did you ever hear a whole house, a great big theater full of a peevish vaudeville audience, just rise at you, give one roar of laughter they hadn't expected at all to give, and then settle down to giggle at every move you made.

Girl alive, I just had 'em! They couldn't take their eyes off me. If I squirmed, they howled. If I stood on one foot, scratching the torn leg of my stocking with the other—you know, Mag!—they yelled. If I grinned, they just roared.

MURDER FIVE

AND SET HOUSE ON FIRE TO BURN ALL TRACES.

Burglars Commit Horrible Crime—Two Little Girls Find Family Dead.

Charlotte N. C., July 14.—Isaac Lyerly, his wife and three children were foully murdered by burglars last night at their home in Rowan county. Two daughters, sleeping in the upstairs rooms, smelled smoke and rushed down stairs. They saw the corpses of two sisters and a brother scattered about the floor. The bed on which Lyerly and his wife lay dead was a mass of flames. It is believed the crime was the work of two negroes, one of whom had formerly worked for Lyerly. It is known they had money in the house. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive.

DARING BREAK FOR LIBERTY.

Handcuffed Prisoner Throws Snuff in Sheriff's Eyes.

Humboldt, Tenn., July 14.—A story of a very original and unusual method to escape being taken to prison has reached here from Alamo, Crockett county, the sheriff of that county being the victim. Several days ago two men were arrested in Crockett for stealing horses, and Sheriff Henderson and a deputy were on their way to Alamo jail with the prisoners in separate buggies. The sheriff's prisoner, in spite of his handcuffs, managed to dash a double handful of snuff in Henderson's face. As soon as Henderson could see he started in pursuit of the prisoner and called to a 12-year-old boy, whom he saw working near his home to get his gun and stop the fugitive. It is reported that the boy promptly secured his gun and fired several times at the prisoner, "some shots taking effect, and succeeded in recapturing him.

This One Wife Lived With Two Men For Five Years.

Denver, Colo. July 14.—A case of two men with one wife, the three living under the same roof for more than five years, with one of the men in ignorance of the other's relations to the woman has been brought to light in the court proceedings here in which Mrs. Grace A. Peterson was divorced from Walter Peterson. Mr. Peterson alleges that while he was married to Mrs. Peterson at Mt. Gilboa, O., July 25, 1900, she was the wife of F. W. Welland, whom she introduced to Peterson as her brother.

INTO LAKE

MISS LUCY JAMES FELL BUT WAS RESCUED.

Mishap of Boating Party On Illinois Lake Last Wednesday Afternoon Kept Secret.

At a boating party on the Illinois lake opposite Paducah, Wednesday, Miss Lucy James, of the north side, fell into the lake and was rescued by Mr. Luther Riley. In the boat were Miss Carrie Hughes, of Eleventh and Clay streets, Miss James and Mr. Riley. Miss James lost her balance and fell out of the boat. Without a moment's hesitation Mr. Riley plunged in after her and after a brief struggle both got back into the boat. The young people realizing their narrow escape, remained on the other side of the river until the clothes of Miss James had dried in order not to frighten their families. At first the story was denied but was finally substantiated.

The gauge registered a stage of 6.0 this morning, the river being on a stand here. Rainfall in the last 24 hours was 2.30 inches.

The Dunbar arrived from Clarksburg, Tenn., this morning and probably will remain here until Monday at noon. Advice about the stage of water in the upper Cumberland river has not been received, but it may be high enough to leave for Nashville Monday. In any event the Dunbar will go as far as Clarksburg.

The City of Salt Lake arrived yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. Louis, and left immediately for the Tennessee river.

The Joe Fowler was eight hours late arriving from Evansville yesterday, getting here at 7 o'clock last night, and leaving at 9 o'clock on the return trip. Slow time had to be made on account of low water.

The John Hopkins was the regular Evansville packet today. There will be no packet to Evansville Sunday.

The Jim T. Duffy arrived out of the Tennessee river last night with ties for the Ayer-Lord T. company and left today for the same river.

Capt. G. F. Phillips, agent for the Lee line here, has closed down his office at 111 Broadway, owing to the suspension of navigation of the Ohio river by that line. To get to Cairo by boat now it would be necessary to take the Dick Fowler or the Tennessee river St. Louis packets as far as Cairo, where connections are made with Mississippi river packets.

The Kentucky arrived last night from Joppa and will leave this evening at 6 o'clock for the Tennessee river.

Practically a new hull is being built on the cotton steamer Natchez which is on the ways here. The boat has been on the ways many weeks now and will be there many weeks longer. It is frequently the case that boats need more repairs when the work has actually begun than was estimated while they were in the water.

The Butterff is having considerable repairs made to its hull on the ways. On the dry docks the United States steamer Lookout has been here a week longer than expected.

A government report says that nearly all snags in the Ohio have been removed by the United States snagboats E. A. Woodruff and W. H. Christian between the Pennsylvania state line and Cairo, Ill. The work was done under the supervision of Maj. J. G. Warren, U. S. A.

The following wrecks were removed on the recent trip of the E. A. Woodruff: 472, right of channel, foot of Cullom's dike, sandboat, unknown; 46, left of channel, at Lock No. 8, coalboat, unknown; 51, left of channel, at Mahan's Landing, coalboat, R. IN THE LOBBY

The Rev. T. J. Newell passed a bad afternoon Tuesday, because he had something in his pocket, which it is not proper to carry about, but which, at the same time, were in the reverend gentleman's possession for a very good cause. He held on to them for several reasons, among which were, that he did not know where to leave them, and he was afraid he might go to the meeting of the board of aldermen and forget them. Dr. Newell had some unpleasantly suggestive picture cards, which he desired to call to the attention of the board of aldermen in connection with the issuance of saloon licenses, and which embarrassed him, notwithstanding the righteousness of the cause in which they were to be employed. That he didn't like even to associate with them in good works was evident from his own remarks. As he stood before the board exhibiting the wicked advertisement he said:

"Why gentlemen, it makes me shudder to think of it now. What if I had dropped dead this afternoon on the street and someone had found these things in my possession with no word to explain my conduct? It worried me as I came down here to the city hall." And that his apprehension was genuine was apparent by his face.

An organizer for one of the traveling men's organizations was talking about traveling at The Palmer last night. "The traveling man of today is a different man from the traveling man of yesterday. The plane of ability has greatly risen and in that field you will find a large and increasing number of highly intelligent business men. They have to be. The men who represent the big concerns in the east must be men who can meet anybody. They have to meet the cultivated business men of the cities as well as the less important men in the smaller places. And with this higher plane of ability has come the necessity for a better moral standard."

"Traveling men seem to be in more of a hurry than the rest of Americans," it was suggested. "Yes, and the pace is one which cannot be kept up indefinitely. We Americans are going at a pace which will sooner or later, rather sooner than later, wear us out. We doubtless will go high as a nation but the fall when it comes, unless we slow up, will be correspondingly great."

The one draw-back to a fenceless town is being felt with much dissatisfaction by Paducahans. It is the promotion or increase of vandalism, and a great deal of it is being reported daily.

Mr. R. E. Ashbrook thinks the city should pass an ordinance or some law which would make it a misdemeanor to trespass on private property. "I have removed my fence from about my residence at Fourth and Clay streets," he stated this morning "and boys have been tramping down my flowers, stealing out my hose and committing other forms of vandalism. My hose was taken into the street recently while I was away from home and left there, Wagons running over it ruined it. I think if there is no law remedying such actions, the general council should pass one." Mr. Ashbrook is not alone in his complaint. Others have experienced the same trouble. The juvenile court will probably have a few cases to pass upon if the conditions are not soon bettered.

Paducahans can now appreciate what New Yorkers had to undergo when the subway was under course of construction. Water main extensions, new reconstruction street work and repairs to old streets have the city torn up from one end to the other, and there are few streets to be found that are not torn up in some way. It means progress. It means that the Paducah Light and Power company is expending thousands of dollars in building up its lines and in the extension of gas mains. The "cook with gas" signs are out on at least half a dozen streets, the water company is extending mains in all directions, pavements are being laid in every section of the city, and a general upheaval of dirt is evidenced throughout the city.

JUST READY

By MARAH ELLIS RYAN

FOR THE SOUL OF RAFAEL

When Keith Bryton went to Mexico to look up some mining property, he came upon a strange little tribe of Indians.

And after he had been "struck down and—well—used up," as he said, he was saved and nursed back to life by a lovely Mexican girl whose name he did not learn.

Nor did he see her again until after she had married Rafael de Arteaga, the worthless scion of a noble race. Here is the situation at the beginning of this fascinating romance of Old California, and here are the principal characters.

Perhaps you will think that the happiness of Bryton and the girl he loved so reverently are worth far more than the soul of Rafael, but they did not think so, and that is what makes the story.

And it is a splendid story, of the kind that charms without the least effort, because of its inherent strength and sincerity.

The outward appearance of the book is worthy of its contents. It is not possible to adequately describe it here, but nothing more original or beautiful will be found among this year's novels.
